Fresh as the first beam glittering on a sail, That brings our friends up from the underworld, Sad as the last which reddens over one That sinks with all we love below the verge: So sad, so fresh, the days that are no more.

Ah, sad and strange as in dark summer dawns The earliest pipe of half-awakened birds To dying ears, when unto dying eyes The casement slowly grows a glimmering square; So sad, so strange, the days that are no more.

Dear as remembered kisses after death And sweet as those by hopeless fancy feigned On lips that are for others; deep as love, Deep as first love, and wild with all regret; O Death in Life, the days that are no more.

-Tennyson, "The Princess."

It may readily be supposed that I

The morning before the appointed

"Are you determined to keep up this

"Farce?" said I, raising my brows.

"I intend to obey my beloved aunt, if

"Then take the consequences," be retorted, as he departed angrily and

That evening a note was discovered counter to them, he had resolved to de-

The distracted mother was beside herself with grief. She rushed here and there, giving contradictory orders;

the hope that he might vet be discov-

except his coat and hat on the bank

The conclusion come to was that the unfortunate young man had drowned

himself, though no trace of the body

"You are my only hope and com-

"You must never leave me,

fort!" cried my aunt, weeping on my

With some misgivings, I promised I

The next morning, at an early hour

Mr. Denaby appeared in a state of distraction. Augusta, it seemed, unable to any other bride, had also drowned herself. Her cloak and hat had been discovered on the bank of the river.

which was being dragged for the body,

Meanwhile a common sorrow had drawn the two unhappy households

together, and, about a year after these startling events, my aunt astounded

me one morning by the information that she and Mr. Denaby had resolved

Here was a nice prospect for me

My aunt had already become very favorably disposed toward her future

stepchildren, and would be certain to provide handsomely for them in her will, and, instead of being her sole heiress. I was suddenly confronted with seven rivals-the number of Au-gusta's brothers and sisters-and might think myself fortunate if I got off with

The marriage took place, and the Denabys migrated from their small house to my aunt's handsome mansion,

in which I now felt myself an inter-loper. I returned to my former home where my eldest sister was struggling to make both ends meet, and where I was not received with much enthu-

In these circumstances, I accepted

charms which no one but Cyril had

On the very day that I wrote to my received a letter from her, written

they hoped they should be forgiven

vet been able to perceive.

an eighth part of what I had consid-

to unite their broken hearts and seek consolation in wedlock.

ered my due.

but so far without success.

could be discovered.

neck.

darling!"

would not.

farce to the end?" he inquired.

that is what you mean."

By B. F. Paul.

HEN my youngest uncle vate, declared he would commit suicide came home and told my rather than marry me, would reject grandfather that he was me at the altar, would illtreat me in engaged to Miss Smither- the most fearful way after me were son, the dear, old man was married. But to all these threats I paratyzed with dismay, and all the re- opposed an unruffled sweetness of delations and friends who knew Miss meanor and lavished a great show of Smitherson were paralyzed, too, and affection upon him in the presence of expressed their opinion that my uncle my aunt, to whom he was unwillingly had been thwarted through the mach- obliged to respond. Our wedding day drew near, and Edinations of old Smitherson.

This was ten years or so before I gar, finding me unmoved by threats was born. By that time the lady had now had recourse to entreaties, and quarreled with half her husband's re- even secretly brought Augusta to add lations, and by the time I was eighteen her prayers to his; but to their pitiful she had quarreled with the other half, moans I only responded that nothing only excepting myself, to whom, for would induce me to disappoint my dear some unaccountable reason, she had aunt, even if I had to sacrifice my conceived a violent and somewhat em- life's happiness in the cause. barrassing affection. As by this time my parents were dead and had left had not really the slightest intention their children very ill-provided for, we of allowing Edgar to marry me. I inthought it better from prudential mo- tended to drive him into rejecting me. tives to encourage this affection, my a course which would, I knew, deeply aunt being one of our few prosperous offend my aunt and would probably relations, and our only wealthy one, as, oust Edgar altogether from her favor, in addition to her own fortune, she had in which I then hoped to rise still caused my late uncie to make a will higher by the representation that Edleaving her absolute mistress of all he gar's cruelty had broken my heart. possessed; so when he died she was However, as the day approached and worth a considerable fortune. Her Edgar showed no signs of open rebeltwo sons were entirely dependent on lion, I began to be a little alarmed. her caprices, and as she had already | What if, after all, I had to reject Edquarreled violently with the elder, gar? That would be fatal! My aunt there was every chance that she might | would never speak to me again. leave me a comfortable income. I therefore responded with hypocritical wedding day Edgar came to me, pale warmth to her fond overtures, and al- and fierce, ways accepted her frequent and pressing invitations, though I reaped much weariness and not a little irritation from her exacting society.

These visits were, however, rendered endurable by the society of my cousin Edgar, the younger and favorite son, of whom I was really ery fond, and banged the door. with whom I sometimes even fancied myself in love when wearied with the in Edgar's room informing his mother excessive ardor of Cyril Cavendish, an that when she read it all would be impecunious bank clerk, who had fixed over, that he could not obey her wishes his youthful affections upon me, and in marrying me, and, rather than run whose assurances as to my personal charms were often a great comfort to stroy himself. me when wounded in spirit by the plain speaking of my brothers.

One day Edgar came to me with greatly perturbed expression, and said she ran up and down stairs as if he wanted me to help him out of a searching for some sign of his presdifficulty. I said I would do my best, ence; she dispatched search parties in and, after some beating about the ered alive; but nothing could be found bush, he informed me that he was deeply in love with Augusta Denaby. a rather pretty girl who lived in the next parish.

"Augusta Denaby!" I exclaimed. "Why, you know Aunt Maria detests her and would cut you off with a dollar if you ventured to marry her."

"That's just the difficulty," responded Edgar. "Just because Mrs. Denaby offended mother a dozen years ago, she hasn't a good word to say for any of the family. She has hardly spoken to any of them, and, I believe. has never even seen Augusta. I am sure if she once got to know her, she couldn't help liking her, and now that to bear the idea of resigning Edward Mrs. Denaby is dead, there's no reason the enmity should be kept up. But. you see, Kitty, mother has made up her mind that you and I are to marry each other and she is expecting me to propose to you while you are here." "But I don't want to marry you." I returned, with some warmth, Cyril suddenly becoming precious in my sight. "I know you don't," replied Edgar, "and I don't want to marry you, so we are of one mind on that point. But, you see, Kitty. I shall get no peace till I ask you; so what I want you to do is to refuse me, and then I can tell mother that you wouldn't have me. and I shall be reduced to despair and go off and marry Augusta, and mother will throw all the blame upon you. Then we shall gradually work round, so that mother will get to know and like Augusta, and all will end happily.' , I was filled with indignation at this suggestion. Mean, selfsh fellow! Why should I be sacrificed, just to further his own ends, and be deprived of the comfortable provision for the future upon which I was depending at my aunt's death? I resolved upon re-

"Very well," said I, coldly. "I will do what I can for you. But you are sure your mother wants us to marry?" "Yes; she asked me only this morning if I had proposed yet." he replied. "Very well, then, do so," said I. "Well, then, Kitty, will you be my wife?" said Edgar. "With pleasure!" I responded, with a sweet smile.

"But, Kitty, you must refuse me." said Edgar, much taken aback. "I shall do nothing of the sort."

I, with gentle firmness. "Far be it an offer of marriage from a wealthy from me to go against the wishes of my gentleman who fell a victim to those dear aunt, to whom I owe so much. 1 shall go and tell her at once how hap-Py you have made me."

I did, and my aunt embraced me aunt informing her of my engagement. warmly, almost with tears, and I embraced her with equal fervor, and told in great excitement, and incoherently her that I could never do enough to show my gratitude.

My aunt insisted that we should be ada, where he and his wife, Augusta, married at once, only allowing time for the purchase of an elaborate trousseau tremely well. Having heard of the with which she intended to provide

The unfortunate Edgar was nearly distracted. To break off his engagement with me would incense his mother even more than his refusal to propose in the first place would have done. He raged and stormed in pri- of their friends.

Thus all ended well. Edgar has already attained great eminence in his adopted country; Cyril and I are both happily married-to somebody elseand my aunt is so kept in order by her second husband, who has proved to be a person of much decision of character, that she has already begged her eldest son's pardon for having discarded him. and has made an equitable will, dividing her fortune in the most proper and satisfactory manner.

I am glad to say that I am not forgotten.-New York Weekly.

It is said that the $540,000 that Andrew Carnegie has given for the establishment in Boston of an institute similar to Ccoper Institute, is to be added to a fund of $270,000, which has grown from $5000, left 100 years ago by Benjamin Franklin.

Herr Mock, of Babenhausen (Hesse), has been carrying on observations of the humming of both telegraph and telephone wires. The humming of wire running east and west is said to presage a fall of temperature, often ten or more hours in advance of the thermometer: the humming of wires north and south advises a rise in temperature, several hours in advance of the thermometer .-- Pall Mall Gazette.

Upon investigation by the chemist of an extensive railroad system regarding the best protection of structural work from rust, it was found that the value of the various paints used was directly dependent upon the size of the particles of pigment, that is, to the fineness to which it had been ground. It is a common idea among paint users that grinding in oil is preferable to dry grinding. Experiment, however, showed that dry grinding, especially when combined with floating to remove large particles, was much more efficient than the same grinding done in oil.

In the proceedings of the Philadelphia Academy, Miss A. M. Fieide records three instances of curious traits displayed by ants kept under observation in the laboratory at Woods' Hall, Mass. In the first case the actions recorded suggested something akin to or take them out, as they are only a hypnotism, while from the third there seems a possibility that these insects may be able to remember and recognize individuals of their own kind after a tato cellar from thirty to forty degrees separation of several years. The re- in winter. If my principle is wrong, I actions of ants to vibrations is the want to know it .- A. J. Umholtz. of subject of another article in which Johnson County, Ark. it is urged that it is misleading to ascribe or deny hearing to these in-

Snow will manage to get inside of a window where rain in the severest storm cannot penetrate. I have seen it blown under the putty and around the rabbet of the sash on the inside of the pane. So have you. But A? tralian sand: Absalom's party nearly died of starvation because sand got into all their provisions even into tins hermetically scaled and bottles securely corked. It went through leather, rubber, iron. It buried itself in the skin until a man felt like a piece of emery paper. The scientist of the party got several hollow glass balls and anchored them in a simoon. They were from three to five inches in diameter, of material an eighth of an inch thick. Result-After the blow they were discovered to be about a third full of

Negotiating a Loan.

The customer was moodly scratching a match on the woodwork after standing off the cigar store man for the Hr 'im second, and appeared to be little interested in the trend of events, so that the man behind the register picked up a newspaper and scanned the columns listlessly, while waiting for the next smoker.

"I say, Bill, this is interesting," he remarked, after a minute's inspection of the financial page.

The bereaved parents wept together, "What?" asked Bill, wearily. and so touching was their grief that "It says here that the bank clearings I cried, too, although I had not the in New York last week amounted to slightest apprehension that Augusta more than $857,000,000, which was an and Edgar had really drowned themincrease of over fifty per cent. as compared with last year. However, as months passed on and "Uhhu," sighed Bill. nothing was heard of either of them I began to feel rather anxious and to wonder what had befallen them.

"Times must be good down on the coast," continued the eigar store man, but, after all, they haven't got it all to themselves. Here's 'Frisco with a total of $32,000,000, an increase of seven per cent. That's a fine showing, Bill.

"Umph," said Bill. "Here's the news from London, showing that money is easy, especially in South American securities, which appear to be dead easy. To judge by this, times are not so shaky as some people talk about, are they, Bill?"

"I dunno," muttered Bill, "Say, old man," said the cigar man, suddenly, "you don't seem to take any interest in the financial progress of the world. What's the matter with you?"

"I came in here," replied Bill, seratehing the second match just one inch west of the sandpaper, "to negotiate a loan of two bits until Saturdhy night. I want to get my hair cut while it's warm. Just as I am ready to vehearse my touch you spring untold milllons on me, but all of it is in New York or 'Frisco or London or South America, and I got discouraged." Bill secured the loan without security.-Chicago Chronicle.

Gold From River Moss.

Miners along the Trinity River, in northern California, save no inconsiderable amount of gold from the river moss. One country storekeeper at a small place on the river bought, during the season just closed, $4000 worth from them. He says that on the rocks announcing that "Edgar was not in and bedrock along the sides of a chanheaven, as she had hoped," but in Can- nel, especially on rifles and in places where the current is swift, moss forms were happily settled and doing ex- in the summer months. When the water rises in winter it overflows these marriage of their respective parents, places and the moss acts as a goldthey had taken courage to write and saver. When the water begins to fall inform them that they, too, were mar- in summer the miners gather the moss ried, and not dead, as was supposed: and either put it in the sun to dry, burning it later and panning out the and still hold a place in the affections ashes, or they wash it in a tub of water unts the gold is all washed out.

SOUTHERN : FARM : NOTES. ·□ □ □ □ □ □ □ □ □ □ □ □

TOPICS OF INTEREST TO THE PLANTER, STOCKMAN AND TRUCK GROWER.

fertilized. Use from 200 to 400 pounds

The crop should be planted and cul-

keep them in a healthy condition.

Nests and Sitters.

siding, so that the hen will not be likely

in order to get best results, be so situ-

the nest-box to feed at our own con-

to move about in, and in which their food and water should be placed, as well as a good-sized box of dust. But,

never should a sitter be shut in closely on the nest. Such a thing invites disaster .- H. B. Geer, in Southern Culti-

Lettuce From Dampening Oft.

Where lettuce and cabbage are started in beds rich with manure there will be a large proportion of the plants

that will be affected with a fungus disease. All such plants should be started in beds where the soil is poor, then

they will grow slowly and the stems

will become sufficiently hard to resist

this disease. If truck growers will always apply German Kainit to the land

before planting lettuce seed it will reduce the dampening off or tops from falling over. When a plant has damp-venience, is a very bad policy.

like a full hatch is desired.

in nests. But there is.

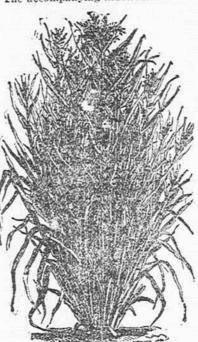

Cellars.

Much has been written lately about of acid phosphate and kainit to the fruit and vegetable cellars, and how acre. If the land is deficient in lime, best to store the fruits and vegetables the addition to the above fertilizer of to keep well. Some say that when 200 pounds of land plaster or lime will sweet potatoes are first put in the cel- make the yield much greater. lar they should be kept very warm for about ten days to pass through a sweat in order to keep well, and afterwards first of May. The crop is much more kept at an even temperature of fifty to sixty degrees Fahrenheit. But in bination planter, as it is often hard to the Southern Fruit Grower, Mr. J. A. get a stand. Foreman says that "fruits and vegetables must never be allowed to sweat four or five inches apart, thinning to protecting him. "Verily, verily." This or get damp at any time." I would like to know which is the correct principle or plan. Mr. Foreman also states that when the temperature falls below forty-five degrees in sweet potato celmake half a crop. lar they will chill and turn black in spots and will soon rot. In my sweet potato cellar the temperature has gone | For cultivation use a side harrow or | rier against the welves. There is only down as low as forty degrees, and they are keeping well so far.

Also two writers I have noticed that larger plow in order to throw more dirt claim that an apple cellar should be to the plants. It does not pay to let on the north slope of a hill to be cool, them get grassy. and the door should open from the top door and window open at night to require any other food while the pealeave in cold air when necessary. Now nuts last, but should be given plenty of it seems to me that a cellar on the clean water. An occasional feed of in summer than on the north slope, as it would receive only the morning sun when the air was cool, while the one on the north slope would receive the prefer to feed corn for a few weeks evening sun when atmosphere was warm, and in winter the one on the north slope would be more subject to severe cold or changes. And why have is finely flavored. a window on the side and door down from the top? I understand that a cellar ought to be dark to keep vegetables only fatten my meat more cheaply, but and fruit best. Then why not have the the land is improved by leaving the door at the end to enter easily to put in whole crop returned to it.-R. T. Steele, or take out fruit or vegetables, and an Scotland County, N. C., in Progressiva open ventilator through the top floor. Farmer. which can be closed when very cold? I have a sweet potato cellar and a cellar for Irish potatoes and fruits. They both face to the east and have double doors at that end and have ventilator another; as if there was no distinction through top floor opening to room above under the roof, which makes them convenient to enter, put things in They are easily ventilated. Have no small extent on the character of the ling." trouble to keep my fruit and Irish po-

What Teosinte Is. Peosinte is botanically closely related to common corn, and is called a grass, although it grows ten feet high. It is a native of Central America, but has been cultivated in the South. It will hardly produce seed in Alabama, but it will make a wonderful quantity of feed for stock. At the Georgia Experiment Station it produced 38,000 pounds of green forage per acre; at Mississippi Expriment Station as high as 44,000 seasons in Alabama are not long enough for teosinte to mature seed. It grows best on rich soils and in hot, rainy seasons.

The accompanying illustration shows the appearance of the plant when about fully grown. It sends up from twenty to thirty stalks from a single root. It mave be cut about three times each season, and fed green on the soiling mode. It can be allowed to grow almost to maturity and be cut before frost, to be used as hay in winter. Leaves are long and stalks small and tender.

Teosinte seed should be planted in Alabama about last of May, in rows four feet apart and thinned to one plant each foot in the row. One pound of seed will sow an acre. Cultivate as if it were corn.-Southern Agriculturist.

Peanuts For Fattening Hogs.

Pointed Paragraphs.

more marriages.

he is on the square.

dicates a cloven hoof.

many funerals as doctors.

didn't keep a few boarders.

maid is easier than living one.

win applause.

gins to thaw.

Nearly every divorce results in two

It is easier to appiaud than it is to

It's impossible to buy a man off if

A woman says a cloven breath in-

About ten minutes after you get the Whiskey is said to cause almost as

Many a man would starve if his wife

A s inster says that dying an old

Don't imagine that a man can talk

A man who is making a night of it

It's quite easy to convince some mar-

Many a man lives in the married state who isn't permitted to think in ried men that it is good to be alone.

on any subject just because he does.

never thinks of the morning after.

snow shoveled off your sidewalk it be-

I would like to call attention to the ened off take it out of the bed, also the value of peanuts for fattening hogs soil immediately around it, and this cheaply. Spanish peanuts will do well may remove the cause and prevent the on any ordinary cotton land if properly disease from spreading.

> Reflections of a Bachelor. Eternal vigilance is the price of not getting found out. It's queer how long it takes a man's wife to get over the idea that his lap was made to sit in. Just before the mosquito season women begin to make open-work clothes so they can bite through.

A girl with pretty ankles would rather wear laced boots so they can keep coming untied for some man to tie again.

politician unless they have an axe to grind. When a man pays a doctor for advice and the doctor prescribes flaxseed tea and mustard plasters the man feels that he has been cheated. It's easier to begin at the top and slide down than it is to begin at the bottom and crawl up. A milliner is always suspicious of a woman customer who doesn't want to try on every hat she has. While the orchestra plays between the acts men go out and smile, but the ladies must simply grin and bear it

INTERNATIONAL LESSON COMMENTS FOR APRIL 2.

Subject: Jesus, the Good Shepher 1, John x., 7-18-Golden Text, John x., 11-Memory Verses, 17, 18-Commentary on the Day's Lesson. I. The shepherd and the sheep (vs. 1-6). In these verses Jesus lays the foundation for the discourse which was to follow. With the external drapery. of this parable the hearers of Jesus were perfectly familiar. Theirs was a sheep-growing country; flocks were their main dependence.

Break up the land and lay off rows II. Christ the door (vs. 7-9). 7. two feet and ten inches apart, planting "Then said Jesus." Jesus was talking | most certain of directly to the men who had excomeasily kept clean if planted with communicated the former blind man, and the application of His words was to them as spiritual thieves and robbers. I find it best to plant the shelled peas They had reviled a poor man instead of emphasized the importance of what He about twice that distance at first workwas about to say. Jesus now proceeds ing. It is cheaper in the end to use to explain the lifustration He had made a double quantity of seed and save reuse of in verses 1-6. "I am the door." planting, as the replanted hills do not The sheep-folds of the East are mere enclosures surrounded by a wall of loose stones with thorn-bushes upon tivated as nearly on a level as possible. the top, but usually an effectual barsmall tooth cultivator until the last one door. "The sheep." True Chr.sworking, which should be done with a | tians, S. "Before Me." Those who came pretending to be pastors or guides to the people. The scribes and Pharisees claimed to be instructors of the people: Fence after laying by. Turn the claimed the right to regulate the affairs floor down and a window on the side; hogs on when matured. They will not of religion; whose only aim was to promote themselves and oppress the peo-"Thieves and robbers." These false teachers, who rejected Christ and northeast or east slope would be cooler charcoal sprinkled with salt serves to who were devouring the sheep. "Did not hear." Many did hear and follow these false prophets, but An acre of good peanuts will fatten "the sheep" - those with true spirfrom 800 to 1000 pounds of pork. Some itual insight-detected their hypocrisy. 9. "Enter in." Through faith in Christ before killing, but it is not absolutely we enter into the fold-the visible necessary. The lard is oily when fatchurch. "Shall be saved." Safe from the robbers that seek to destroy; safe tened on peanuts alone, but the meat from false teachers; safe from the sins that would ruin; safe from the troubles. a number of years, and find that I not dangers and temptations of life. "Go in and out." We must "go in" to trust. to rest, to think, to pray, before we can "go out" to do effective work for the Lord. "Find pasture." Satisfaction for every need of the soul.

III. The thief and the hireling (vs.

10. "Thief." Any opposer of the Gospel. "To steal," etc. False teach-"What's in the nest, anyway?" some ers steal the bearts and affections from one may ask. "A nest's a nest," says Christ. Their heresies kill and destroy all spiritual life. "Life-abundantly" (R. V.) Christ is able to give His peo-In the first place, the eggs and the ple abundant life. Many are seeking sitter are in the nest, and the number "more" life: what such need is "life"of chickens that may, or may not come | the Christ life, the abundant life. 11. few steps down from east end door. forth from the eggs, depends to no See on verses 14, 15. 12. "An hire-The hireling is the one who nest, and its location. It does not mat- labors simply for his wages, with no love or concern for the work. "The ter, even in very cold weather, so much wolf." The wolf is the enemy of souls where the nest is placed, as to how it in any of his manifold disguises, such is constructed. Large hens require as persecution, heresy, worldly living, large nests-nests that will receive the or a low standard of morals. 13. eggs on a comparatively flat. but eth not." To him the welfere of the springy surface, and the hen with her sheep is nothing; he is chiefly solicitous wings dropped about them at the outer for his own safety, his own gain and edge on either side, with also room for worldly honor. IV. Christ the good Shepherd (vs. her to place her feet on the bottom of 14-18). 14. "I am the good Shepherd." the nest without crushing any of the Jesus, as the good Shepherd, was foreeggs. The sides of the nest for the told by God in the prophets. His charearly sitters should have a soft, or acter was that of a divinely appointed elastic rolled edge of hay or other mashepherd. His purposes, His teachings, terial about it, so as to confine the His works. His miracles, His methods eggs, and also aid the hen in keeping of work, all were those which must them in the proper temperature. The belong to a good shepherd of God's nest should also be in a shallow box, or people. "Know My sheep." In the directly on the ground with a six-inch would have and would know its own name. So Christ knows us and loves to crush any when returning to her us as individuals. "Am known of place after feeding. And right here mine." There is a mutual affection is, perhaps, the most important point between the shepherd and the sheep. of all in securing a good hatch. It is There is a mutual affection between the the liberty of the sitter throughout the Father and the Son: one is parallel with the other. As the Father knows whole period of incubation. She must, the Son, so does the Shepherd know the sheep; as the Son knows the atod that she can leave the nest and Father, so do the sheep know the Shepherd.

return whenever she has the inclination to do so. Otherwise, she is apt "Lay down My life." The Ori-15. to become feverish, and her temperaental shepherd must face storms, hardture irregular, which condition will ships and dangers for his sheep; he surely result in some spoiled eggs. Conmust find them when lost and must often fight with wild beasts and robfining the sitter and taking her from bers in protecting them. Our Shepherd gives up His life for us (John 3:16; Fitus 2:14: John 4:10 . 16. "Other Another thing, which is quite as bad sheep have I." The Gentiles who were as the above, and which tends to soon to be brought into His church. shorten the hatch, is the exposure of The good Shepherd sweeps the world the sitter to the annoyance of the layers with His thought. Here is the universal relation of Jesus to sinners of all of the flock crowding in her nest to lay. "Shall become nations and tongues. This must not be allowed, if anything one flock" (R. V.) One flock not in creed or name, but in what is far more The best plan is to put the sitter, or essential-one in Christ. One in heart, several of them if desired, in a place one in purpose, one in the service of where they will be shut in from the God and man. outsiders and yet have plenty of room

"Because I lay down." Not be-17. cause I have laid it down, as though the love of the Father were caused by the earthly love and sacrifice of Christ, cause Christ's Spirit is one of self-sacrificing love, manifested by, but not is loved by the Father (see Phil. 2:9: Heb. 1:9). "Take it again." His rising from the dead was as necessary as His dying, for by His resurrection He secured the fruits of His death (compare Rom. 4:25). Christ died in order to rise to a more complete life, and to raise men with Him. This purpose evoked the love of the Father (compare #2:32; Phil 2:9; Heb. 1:9). 18. His death was entirely volunman. tary. Men killed Him, but He had full power to escape from them had He wished. No one imposed upon Him the duty of leaving Heaven, of coming to the world, suffering and dying. He chose to do it, that He might save men. "Have I received." While He did it voluntarily, it was in accordance with His Father's expressed will. This is the divine law of salvation.

The Rev. W. Carlile, head of the had the power to m Church Army, and who had a special audience of King Edward, the other day, relates the Argonant in an interview recalling remarks by the Bishop of London and Ripon to the effect that fashionable marriages where duties of life are shirked and where marriage was made a mockery, were even Bible much more terrible than those irregular exercise an marriages which the church had not feeding the sanctioned, said: "The love of ease and luxury among the upper classes Men seldom speak favorably of a is mainly responsible for the nation's decay. The refusal of mothers to accept the responsibilities of motherhood is, in my opinion, nothing less than child murder. I weep to think of it: London becoming another Herculaneum, another Pompeii. If we don't mend our ways our fate will be none the less terrible."

> An English physician declares that the eating of flesh meat makes a man immoral. There is no question but the paying for it makes him profane, declares the Washington Post.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR NOTES

APRIL SECOND.

of a Christian: His The Making Food.-2 Tim. 3:14-17; John 6: asecration meeting.) 47-58. (Cor

Bible_Hints.

There is material in the Bible for What a of study. many lifetimes misfortune, then not to begin in early life (2 Time 3:15).

note this ou will Observe, and y pat those that know suggestive fact-t the most about the Bible, and obey its precepts most faithfully, are the s inspiration, and the fullest sense hold the doctrine (2 Tim. 3:16).

the Bible would Of no book b m that it furnished even an infidel cla for living (2 Tim a complete guide judge of Chr One can no mor lim into the without receiving I of bread with eating it (John 6:48 Suggestive Th

than he can judge

other person Can you think of a at would have in the world's history the Bread of dared to call himsel ld gladly admit life, and the world wo his claim?

spiritual food-The quiet hour for as the meal taking is as necessar;

hours for physical foo rain with ice-You cannot feed the with sodacream, nor the muscle feed the soul water; no more can you with material things. ee where his The wise man will eat and exerbody is weak, and will ak part. So cise to build up the wea out those will the Christian seek gospel work Bible portions and that his spiritual which will best meet needs.

Illustrations

Physicians say that most men eat systef with too much, clogging the undigestible food. Christians will food if they not eat too much spiritual put in practice at once all that they learn from Christ. food eaten It has been proved that without an appetite is poorly digested Get up an or not digested at all. appetite for spiritual food Violent exercise is forkidden imso a little mediately after meals. quiet meditation should follow the reception of truth; only, do not wait long before you put it in practice!

We all see that physical growth is absolutely dependent upon food. Why should we expect spiritual growth to come by itself without the taking of spiritual food?

Quotations.

Men are constantly seeking to feed their higher nature upon wrong food, which may satisfy for a time, but in the long run cannot keep back the pangs of a noble spiritual hunger .-Wayland Hoyt.

What are pearls to a man who is dying for want of bread?-Arnot. If you can live without Christ, the Bread of life, I fear your soul is not that of God's people, for they all hunger and thirst after Jesus .- Spur-

EPWORTH LEAGUE LESSONS

APRIL SECOND.

The Making of a Christian; His Food.

-John 6. 47-58; 2 Tim. 3. 14-17. This lesson is a part of one of the pubic discourses of Jesus. In the first four verses Jesus shows that what the manna was to the fathers who received it by eating, himself is to all souls who receive him by faith. Manna was temporal life to the Israelites; he is sternal life to all believers. In the next two verses he goes a clep farther and identifies the bread with his flesh. Then in the latter part of our lesson he adds his blood. The evident meaning is that whoever receives Christ by faith becomes a partaker of the body and blood of Christ; that is, he recives eternal life and the benefits of the resurrection. Timothy we have the same thought presented under the figure of the Word. We are to feed upon Christ and his Word. In other words, our food is spiritual food received by prayer and Bible study. They are able to make wise unto salvation. The soul must be fed as well as the body. The results of starvation is as apparent in the religious life as in the physical. Weak, flabby, and lean souls are as possible, and indeed more common, than lean bodies. As a rule, we care for the body better but because I lay it down. That is, be- than the soul. We can no more build up a strong spiritual life without soul food than we can be strong physically alone embodied in, the incarnation, He, without material food. The making of a Christian depends largely on what he eats. Our scripture suggests That he eat spiritually of Christ. By this we mean an act of faith by which the soul appropriates to itself Christ as a life within. We also mean that he spend much time in prayer, by which he receives strength and grace by personal touch with Jesus. The old manna was found for the body; but this new manna is for the soul, and is to be spiritually received. It suggests the value of prayer and meditation as a means of spiritua growth. No soul can be strong w does not pray much. He must partaker of the divine nature

That he study the Word Paul calls Timothy's atte fact that it was his kno Scriptures which had a character as he salvation. And as teacher all inspi profitable. The ter was one w furnished." It what is true the layman.

who prays soul?

In a rec female sex the majority

the Little take: we s instead of United Stat Hawaii inclu males than fer census of 1900 in evidence th impression, men; they District of they are &B. vote or no der